STUDENT REBELLION

Student power seems to be the thing now. Pick a spot on the globe, and you will find students rioting and reveling. These rebels have decided that they must destroy civilization in order to have a society in which they can cope. Foregoing constructive labour for the bettering of our world, they burn and plunder. They protest society's morals and competitive spirit as they run rampant never giving a thought to progress through wisdom and hard work. Changing the establishment's mind takes great tact and a lot of sweat. But it's no fun to exercise diplomacy and earn respect by intelligence and hard work when you can throw rocks, yell and scream, and carry on. There is little doubt that students must have increased responsibility in shaping the society in which they will live, but greater power must be merited. Rebellion is not a sign of merit, intelligence or rationalization.

The students at George Brown are fortunate in many ways. Past students and student leaders have earned a measure of respect from the administration. We have a Principal who is always open to a rational scheme, presented with acuity. The Council has risen from an obscure social agency to a corporation of students who command respect from the community, faculty, and administration.

This year, the S.A.C. must continue building on the foundation constructed by last year's Council. We have financial independence and control of student affairs. We must now, prove that we deserve this confidence and respect. Anarchy must be shunned. If anarchy is embraced, we embrace confusion and absence of government. We, here at George Brown have no need of lawlessness. Rebellion against the administration is ridiculous and pointless. We should instead spend our energy on building a great student society.

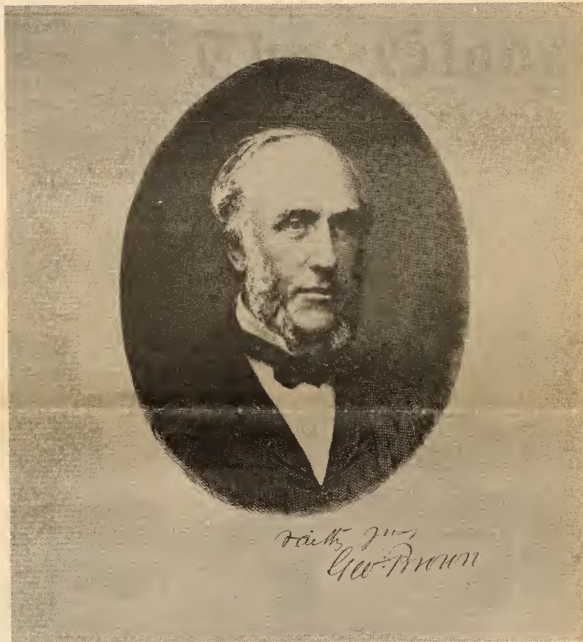

A student government can only be effective with the support of the student body. It is the duty of the students to elect conscientious executive officers and class representatives. The student must exercise his rights and vote for the candidate who is most likely to work hard for the benefit of the students. The S.A.C. has won the tools to produce a strong Council this year, but it takes people to use the tools. Let's go!

This year's students are the beneficiaries of innumerable innovations and the recipients of the labours of previous Councils. The Student Guide is new, and we hope its existence this year will see its continuing publication in following years. Every Executive Officer, Standing Chairman, and Class Representative will receive a S.A.C. Badge this year. All Councillors will receive an adapted copy of the Laws of Parliament at the first meeting to assist them in conducting themselves in a proper manner at meetings. The Student Center is brand new, as is the Athletic Association, the new College crest, the Orientation Program, increased social events, a new constitution, a new managerial structure of the S.A.C., and a brand new campus. As the College is growing, so grows the S.A.C.

With an ambitious program of athletic and social events the Council must have man power to make each function a success. For this reason we will utilize the man power of the Council of Representatives for committees under the leadership of Standing Chairmen & the Executive Officers. The Council will not only take part in formulating the policies of the S.A.C., but will be a source of leadership training for future Executives and Chairmen. Council work will be hard work. It is designed to be challenging. Without hard work, there is no satisfaction in success, so we will expect each and every Councillor to do more than warm a seat at meetings.

The S.A.C. Executive received criticism last year, for dictating the policies of the S.A.C. To a degree, this criticism was justified so we will endeavour to avoid a similar situation arising. It is the responsibility of the Council of Representatives to take their positions seriously and represent their classes at every meeting of the Council and serve on the committees to which they are called.

There always exists in any governing body, some members who are extremely creative. They can think up some excuses for not attending every meeting or sitting on committees. These people cannot be tolerated at George Brown. Every Councillor will be expected to pull his weight. If your class rep is not present at meetings nor active in committees, he is cheating you. Fire him. We've a lot of work to do, and we can't carry dead weight.

THE COURAGEOUS CANADIAN

George Brown, one of the great Fathers of Confederation and a fearless champion of human rights, was born near Edinburgh, Scotland, on November 29, 1818. He emigrated to the United States in 1838 and moved to Toronto in 1843. For a short period after his arrival he published the Banner, a weekly journal described as "an organ of the Free Church Party".

Within a year the youthful Brown decided that the country of his adoption badly needed a "purely political paper" and as a consequence, the Globe made its first appearance on March 5, 1844.

Brown lost no time in becoming an active participant in the lively politics of the day and in 1851 he became a candidate for a seat in Parliament. He was also one of the outstanding supporters of the American Abolitionist Movement of the 1850's and, along with Oliver Mowat, helped to establish the Anti-Slavery Society of Canada.

In the years that followed, Brown was the chief adversary of his contemporary, John A. Macdonald and they engaged in many bitter political battles, but a decade later, when the future of Canada hung in the balance, it was Brown who, in an extraordinary example of self-abnegation, broke the deadlock, joined forces with his old enemy Macdonald, and opened up the road to Confederation.

On the 150th anniversary of Brown's birth, which coincides with International Year for Human Rights, it is important for Canadians of our day to be aware of the great contribution he made in the struggle for human dignity and of the high esteem in which he was held by the people of his time, who had so richly benefited by his thirty-six years of public service.

BRONZE MEDALLION

To commemorate the 150th anniversary of the birth of George Brown, the firm of Wellings, well known engravers, has produced a fine bronze medallion bearing a striking profile of the great Canadian statesman and on the reverse side the shields of the ten provinces, together with those of the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

In the centre is the Canadian Coat of Arms. The medallion is enclosed in an attractive plush lined case.

Only a limited number have been struck and it is certain to become a cherished item of Canadians.

HAT S INSTRUMENTATION

So! You're in instrumentation! How do you like fixing musical instruments?

Instrumentation! What's that? Oh! You're in an instrument man and work with survey crews and all that stuff.

These three statements are the ones most often encountered by instrument people when new acquaintances get around to asking them what they do for a living.

Some of the more crafty types (there are many) sometimes answer the question by saying that they are in electronic and pneumatic instrumentation.

The word electronic is sufficient to conjure a vision of vastly complex things like clanging door bells and chugging computers, thereby impressing the great unwashed multitude.

The word pneumatic is derived from the Greek word pneuma meaning spirit or air. The word combination of electronic and pneumatic may very well cause some of our learned friends to consider us as electronic spiritualists, which I must admit is somewhat of an oddity.

Instrumentation embraces all facets of industry from the mundane pasteurization of milk to the more exotic control of neutron flux in a nuclear reactor.

The level of molasses in a tank, the flow of steam in a pipe, the temperature of nylon in an autoclave, all have one thing in common — they can be unerringly recorded, controlled and metered, twenty-four hours a day, 365 days a year by instruments.

Instruments relieve man from drudgery and allow him to assume more satisfying and meaningful duties. The instrument is not subject to fatigue, boredom and outside pressures and hence does a more satisfactory job than man, at sometimes a fraction of the cost, with improved quality in the finished product.

The example cited below is extreme but it was experienced first hand by myself.

On my first day of employment at Bicraft Uranium mines I paused in wonder and amazement to watch an operator busily flitting back and forth between two pneumatic filters, trying to keep the level of the effluent constant in each filter by manipulating two hand control valves. He was moving in rapid spurts in somewhat the same manner that a tennis player covers his net in a fast game of singles.

Although this situation was just as a spectator sport it left much to be desired efficiency wise.

Arrangements were made to give the operator more meaningful and challenging duties. We then installed an automatic level control on the first filter with instruments we found lying around the shop. With the purchase of seven hundred dollars worth of equipment we instrumented the second filter.

The saving to the mine on the basis of Mill operation on three, eight hour shifts per day, 365 days per year and an annual wage of $5000 for each operator was $15,000 per year. The mine operated for six years after the installation giving a total saving of $90,000.

Thus instrumentation is the economic control of an industrial process by pneumatic and electronic means.

Instrument mechanics and technicians are highly skilled personnel who design control loops, modify, install and repair instruments, none of which is musical.

FAST FOOD SERVICE!!

All you second year fellows — do you remember what a time you had to get served by those ravishing beauties behind the food counter in the cafeteria? All is no! lost in this bustling section of George Brown for after discussing the deplorable situation with our Principal I learned that there are going to be several changes in the cafeteria.

I suppose that the main reason that the lineups were so bad was due to the fact that there were so many students to begin with. At great expense to you, the students, (in the form of an increase in the admission fees) this has been solved completely. Approximately 750 students will be moved out of the Nassau building and stored in an old warehouse that once belonged to Eatons. Not only is this going to be done, but also the cafeteria is to undergo some facelifting so as to provide fast service for those persons not wanting a full course dinner.

The addition of a new course called Food Service Technology will allow these students to set up a better program in feeding the hungry mouths at George Brown.

For all those lucky people remaining at the Nassau building we sincerely hope that the french fries will not be weighed before being given to us and that ketchup will not be kept under lock and key and given out only with written permission of King Tut.

The last and best news of all concerning lunch hour is that it has been extended to one hour instead of the regular forty minutes. This gives us more time to enjoy that one more for the road at Grossmans before heading back to classes.

If any student has anything to sell or buy — come on into the newspaper office and your ad will be put in the paper. I think that best results will be gotten in this manner.

For a little bit of excitement I think that many will enjoy working on the newspaper staff. If you enjoy meeting people, and generally having a little fun while attending classes this year — come in and see Jim Lundy at the Newspaper office. I think we are in for a fun year.

The executive officers are elected by the student body. The President recommends the appointment of Standing Chairmen to the Council of Representatives. The Council is elected through the individual classes and represents classes at all Council meetings. Through the Standing Committees, chaired by the Standing Chairmen, sub-committees are formed that do the bread and butter work of the student body. For example, there is a Social-Athletic Standing Committee. Sub-committees will be responsible for the management of individual dances, the Winter Carnival and serve as liaison with the Athletic Association. There should be no class representative elected who is not interested in a Standing Committee as outlined in the Student Guide.

It will be well worth while for athletic oriented students to run for the executive of the Athletic Association. This year, the positions of Treasurer & Secretary are open. We of the S.A.C. have urged the formation of the Athletic Association for the benefit of all students interested not only in service to the College's student body, but are sports-minded and can manage the affairs of the Association under the fiscal regulations of the S.A.C.

We believe that we have a comprehensive program planned. With the participation of the student body through their class reps, we can have an outstanding S.A.C. We can have a student government respected and admired by all the students in the province.

A man once said that life is a series of progressions to attain a goal. The life of George Brown College is in fact progressing in such a manner. Last year, through the help of a hard hitting and conscientious President of Student Council, George Brown became a leader within the Community College system.

This, however, does not mean that there are not certain needs of reform within our own college. We are badly in need of some. No longer are we just an institution that takes high school flunkies, but a recognized college striving to attain better standards. Why should we strive for better standards? Personal satisfaction is one reason, for who wants to graduate from a school only to be shunned by industry because of their lack of trust in the students. Therefore we must be taught by the best to achieve our best.

Not only must we excel within the "Establishment" but within our own realm as well. Student affairs is a pressing problem in this modern day and age. The more who participate, actively, within the Student Council, the Newspaper and the various clubs means that more students will know what they need from education and how education might be improved within our walls.

Last year the Student Council was not a driving tool. It did, however, awaken a few to realize that George Brown had to begin to mature. At the beginning of this year I can safely say that this college is maturing at a faster pace than any other college. If we hope at all to have a successful year both academically and socially, participation must be at its maximum. Both the Administration and the Student Council must work as a team to achieve a better college for those students who enter here in later years.

In closing I would also like to stress that at present there are only two people putting out your newspaper. A staff of at least ten will be required or the paper will collapse — sacrificing a year to try and please those who will not help themselves is not worth it.

Please participate.

THE PRINCIPAL'S ADDRESS

A great deal has happened during the last two months to effect change in the conduct of the affairs of the George Brown College.

Two new buildings open for the conduct of classes on Sept. 3, 555 Davenport Road is a well equipped building completely air conditioned housing the courses which were in temporary quarters at 253 Spadina Road. 51 Teraulay Street is an excellently well equipped building which will accommodate classes moved from 21 Nassau Street, the trowel trades, painting and decorating, signwriting and silk screen process, electronics, radio and television technician, drafting, iron workers and a number of other courses yet to be started. These two buildings provide as much new student activity space as was to be formed in P.I.T. and P.I.T.O. combined. WE ARE OFF THE SHIFT SYSTEM.

The modernization of facilities as well as general reorganization of the college is designed to provide a better service to students and an improvement in course organization.

The Student Council now has a home it can call its own. This will make it easier for the executive to conduct its business and improve the function of the student council. Experience in the past has proven that we have at George Brown a number of enthusiastic students who are willing to go the extra mile and work for the betterment of student affairs as well as the organization of student functions. These people are to be commended and supported for a good college is dependent upon the development of a strong responsible student council. The administration of the college will do all that it can to foster this but similar encouragement must come from the general student body. Carefully select and elect your student representatives and support them. This is an opportune time to welcome back students who return to George Brown and to hope that you had a good summer. A special welcome is also extended to the freshman students. We hope all of you have a fruitful and enjoyable year.

C.C. Lloyd,
Principal

LIFE'S HARD GAME

When you're lost in the Wild, and you're scared as a child, And death looks you bang in the eye, And you're sore as a boil, its according to Hoyle To cock your revolver and ... die.

But the code of a Man says: "Fight all you can", And self-dissolution is barred. In hunger and woe, oh, its easy to blow ... It's the hell-served-for-breakfast that's hard.

"You're sick of the game!" Well now, that's a shame. You're young and you're brave and you're bright. "You've had a raw deal!" I know — but don't squeal. Back up, do your damndest, and fight.

It's the plugging away that will win you the day, So don't be a piker, old pard! Just draw on your grit; it's so easy to quit: It's the keeping-your-chin-up that's hard.

It's easy to cry that you're that you're beaten — and die; It's easy to crawl and crawl; But to fight and to fight when hope's out of sight -- Why, that's the best game of them all! And though you come out of each gruelly bout, All broken and beaten and scared, Just have one more try -- it's easy to die, It's the keeping-on-living that's hard.

THE COST OF CLOTHES

For the past few years I'm sure that you have noticed that just to go out and buy a pair of pants costs you an arm and a leg. This is enough to discourage any student from dressing as he would like to — whether it be the mod look or the Conservative touch.

On my rounds to get ads for our College newspaper I happened to enter many clothing stores. In all that I have gone into there is only one that I can recommend and really mean it.

The J & S Men's Shop located right across from the school on Spadina can give you, the student, a better price than many other men's shops. This even includes Eatons and Simpsons. This may seem impossible for a small store to compete with the larger ones such as the above mentioned. Believe me, it is no joke when I tell you that you will be better satisfied at this store. All students from the College will receive a ten per cent discount on all that they buy.

Patronizing this shop will benefit the wallet and your attire considerably.
